Why H. S. Stout Succeeds.

Here are a few reasons why H. S. Stout has succeeded in building up the largest tailoring business in Paris:

FIRST—He recognized the fact that five years ago that the only day of big profits and small sales was past.

SECOND—He cuts the price of tailor-made garments at least 40 PER CENT.

THIRD—He kept up the quality of his materials, his styles and his workmanship.

FOURTH—He always does as he advertised.

AS A RESULT.

As a result of this system he has built up a large trade that appreciates the fact that they save twenty dollars on a single Suit or Overcoat. "Many customers at a small profit rather than a few customers at a big profit," says H. S. Stout.

If you want credit, your high-price tailor gladly extends it, for he makes you pay dearly for it in the end.

Why not turn over a new leaf—wear the best, save money, by giving H. S. Stout a trial?

He makes the Finest Imported Suits for $30.00 AND $35.00.

The Cruel Knife!

It is absolutely useless to expect a surgical operation to cure cancer, or any other blood disease. The cruelty of such treatment is illustrated in the alarming number of deaths which result from it. The disease is in the blood, and hence can not be cut out. Nine times out of ten the surgeon's knife only hastens death.

My son had a most malignant Cancer, for which the doctors said an operation was the only hope. The operation was a severe one, as it was necessary to cut down to the jaw bone and scrape it. Before a great while the Cancer returned, and began to grow rapidly. We gave him many remedies without relief, and finally, upon the advice of a friend, decided to try S. S. S. (Swift's Specific), and with the second bottle he began to improve. After twenty bottles had been taken, the Cancer disappeared entirely, and he was cured. The cure was a permanent one, for he is now seventeen years old, and has never had a sign of the dreadful disease to return. J. N. MURDOCH, 279 Snodgrass St., Dallas, Texas.

Absolutely the only hope for Cancer is Swift's Specific.

DISASTROUS DASH

Cervera Attempts to Sneak Away.

Three of His Ships Burned and One Surrenders.

Adm. Cervera and Most of the Officers Taken Prisoners.

The Spanish Loss Was 350 Killed, 160 Wounded and 1,600 Captured.

Our Loss Was One Killed and One Wounded—Not An American Ship Was Injured—Shafter Demands the Surrender of Santiago.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Inspiring, glorious news thrilled every avenue of official life and stirred every heart in the national capital Monday, making it indeed a glorious Fourth of July. Word came from Shafter, from Sampson and from Dewey, telling of successes already achieved and those near at hand. The wildest and most indescribable enthusiasm greeted Adm. Sampson's dispatch announcing the complete annihilation of Adm. Cervera's fleet and the surrender of the admiral himself with 1,300 Spanish prisoners. Cheer after cheer rang through the corridors of the state, war and navy building. A surging mass of newspaper correspondents struggled about the bulletin boards and hundreds of officials and clerks crowded up to hear the stirring news. First the hurrahs started in the navy department, but as word passed along the cry was taken up until every hall and corridor echoed with the cheers of victory. Soon the news spread outside and ran to the Fourth of July crowds, until the whole national capital was cheering. To say that glad tidings were welcome to the president and his advisors but faintly tells the sentiments it inspired. Among them and in all official quarters it was accepted not only as a glorious victory on the natal day of the republic, but one which dealt such a deadly blow to Spain that she could not rise again.

"To Secretary Navy, Siboney, July 3: The fleet under my command offers the nation as a Fourth of July present the destruction of the whole of Cervera's fleet. Not one escaped. It attempted to escape at 9:30 a. m., and at 2 p. m. the last, the Cristobal Colon, had run ashore 60 miles west of Santiago and had let down her colors. The Infanta Marie Teresa, Oquendo and Vizcaya were forced ashore, burned and blown up within 20 miles of Santiago, the Furor and Pluton were destroyed within four miles of the port. Loss, one killed and two wounded. Enemy's loss probably several hundred from gun fire, explosions and drowning. About 1,300 prisoners, including Adm. Cervera. The man killed was George H. Ellis, chief yeoman of the Brooklyn.

"SAMPSON."

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The following dispatch was received from Commodore Watson Monday night.

PELAYA DEL ESTE, July 3.—To the secretary of the navy, Washington, D. C.: At 9:30 a. m., today the Spanish squadron, seven in all, including one gunboat came out of Santiago in column and was totally destroyed within an hour, excepting Cristobal Colon, which was chased 45 miles to westward by the commander in chief, Brooklyn, Oregon and Texas, surrendering to Brooklyn, but was beached to prevent sinking.

None of our officers or men were injured except on board the Brooklyn. Chief Yeoman Ellis was killed and one man wounded. Adm. Cervera, all commanding officers, excepting of Oquendo, about 70 other officers and 1,600 men are prisoners. About 350 killed or drowned and 160 wounded, latter being cared for on Solace and Olivette. Have just arrived off Santiago on Marblehead to take charge while commander in chief is looking out for Cristobal Colon. (Signed.)

WATSON.

Several of Shafter's dispatches were made public. One of them stated that he had the enemy surrounded on the north and east. Another stated: "I feel that I am master of the situation, and can hold the enemy for any length of time."

In still another Gen. Shafter said his demand for the surrender of Santiago was still being considered by the Spanish authorities. Yet another dispatch from Shafter, probably the most important of all, was not made public up to 1 o'clock. It is at great length, covering five or six typewritten sheets of telegraph paper. Briefly and semi-officially its contents were summed up as follows:

Gen. Shafter made a demand for the surrender of Santiago. This was at first refused by the Spanish commander, but the demand was apparently taken under consideration. Gen. Shafter's notice was that he would begin the bombardment of the city Tuesday unless the surrender was made. Fearing the awful results of bombardment, the representatives of foreign countries at Santiago assembled and asked that another day be given for the women, children and non-combatants to be taken out of the city. It is thought, under the circumstances, that Gen. Shafter would give a reasonable time for the removal of the women and children. At all events a period of inaction followed, with the expectation that the surrender will be made Tuesday or else that the bombardment will begin.

The news from Dewey was equally stirring in character. His official dispatch bore the Hong Kong date of July 4, although it came from Cavite July 1. It told not only of the arrival of the first expedition, but of the capture of Guan. Ladrone islands, with its and Oquendo and the destroyers all firing rapidly.

All of the American battle ships opened fire at once and the Spanish were soon in a hurricane of shot and shell, but the Colon kept on bravely till, when about ten miles from the westward of Morro Castle Adm. Cervera turned his vessel to the shore and beached her. She was blazing in a score of places but her guns kept at work and the white flag never showed until she was completely disabled.

The Oquendo and Vizcaya were opposed to the Iowa, Texas and Indiana, and went down to defeat with fearful swiftness, covering only about half the distance made by the Colon before their captains ran them ashore. Their crews fought with desperate bravery, but their courage was no match for the courage of our men added to their superb gunnery. The Spanish shells went wild for the most part, but the American gun fire was garrison of six officers and 54 men, and the surrender of the gunboat Leyte with 32 officers and 94 men.

Following are the details of the destruction of the Spanish fleet:

Three of the Spanish cruisers that were bottled up in Santiago harbor and two torpedo boat destroyers were pounded into helpless hulks by the guns of Adm. Sampson's fleet on Sunday in a vain attempt to escape from the harbor. The vessels were beached in a last effort to save as many of the lives of the crews as possible.

Adm. Cervera, on board the Cristobal Colon, headed his fleet in the attempt to get away at about 9:30 marked by merciless precision. The two cruisers, both on fire, were beached not more than one-quarter of a mile apart.

OFF SANTIAGO, July 5.—Adm. Cervera escaped to the shore in a boat sent by the Gloucester to the assistance of the Infanta Marie Teresa, and as soon as he touched the beach he surrendered himself and his staff to Lieut. Morton and asked to be taken on board the Gloucester, which was the only American vessel near him at the time with several of his officers including the captain of the flagship. The Spanish admiral who was also wounded in the arm, was taken to the o'clock. So little were the Americans expecting the dash that the flag ship New York was cruising up the coast to the east and returned only in time to see the finish of the fight and to fire a shot or two at the torpedo boat destroyers.

SPAIN'S FOURTH OF JULY.

The Old, Old Story—"I Didn't Know It Was Loaded!"

The Iowa, Indiana, Oregon, Massachusetts, Texas, Brooklyn and the converted yacht Gloucester, formerly the Corsair, formed in position to give battle as soon as the Colon was sighted rounding the wreck of the Merrimack.

The American vessels did not open fire at once; they waited until Cervera's fleet were out of the range of Morro's guns before giving battle. Cervera headed to the west, the Colon in the lead, followed by the Vizcaya

Gloucester and was received at her gangway by her commander, Lieut. Commander Richard Wainwright, who grasped the hand of the gray bearded admiral and said to him:

"I congratulate you, sir, upon having made as gallant a fight as was ever witnessed on the sea."

Lieut. Commander Wainwright then placed his cabin at the disposal of the Spanish officers.

At that time the Spanish flag ship and four other Spanish vessels had been aground and burning for two hours, and the only one of the escaping fleet which could not be seen at this point was the Cristobal Colon. But half a dozen curls of smoke far down on the western horizon showed the fate that was awaiting her.

IT IS POSTPONED.

A Conference Over Advisability of Bombarding Santiago at Present.

There is No Possibility That Santiago Will Be Bombarded This Week—Gen. Pando Enters the City With Over 6,000 Spaniards.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—There was no bombardment of Santiago Tuesday and possibly will not be during the present week. This is the opinion of members of the cabinet as expressed on leaving the White House after the cabinet meeting. Secretary Alger and Secretary Long have been in almost constant communication with Gen. Shafter and Admiral Sampson upon the situation and the conclusion has been reached that it would not be advisable to attempt to carry the city of Santiago by storm with our present forces. Gen. Shafter, in a dispatch received Monday night, confirmed the report that Gen. Pando with 6,000 Spaniards had arrived in the city, and were already distributed among the fortifications. This reinforcement makes the Spanish forces defending the city from 10,000 to 18,000. The very great advantage of being entrenched adds materially to their strength, and in the opinion of military men makes their effective fighting force from a third to a half greater than our own. Gen. Shafter in his dispatches states that the excessive heat and rains of the last two weeks have contributed nearly as much as the Spanish bullets to the ineffectiveness of our army. Under these circumstances it is his opinion that it would be unwise to attempt to carry the city by assault. This view is shared by the officials here and also it is understood by Adm. Sampson, in command of the fleet.

At the cabinet meeting the president directed that telegrams be sent to Gen. Shafter and Adm. Sampson suggesting that they confer as to the situation and particularly as to the advisability of the admiral's attempt to force a passage into Santiago bay and so be in a position to render effective aid in the assault upon the city. It is known to be Gen. Shafter's desire to have the fleet enter the harbor. Orders were also given looking to the immediate dispatch of troop ships from Tampa with reinforcements for Shafter, and others now off Santiago, will be brought here at the earliest possible moment to aid in the transportation of reinforcements. It is probable that at least 15,000 will be sent forward as rapidly as transportation can be provided. Thus augmented there seems to be no doubt the forces under Gen. Shafter will be able to storm and take the city without delay. These are the views entertained by members of the cabinet, who talked freely Tuesday on the subject. Nevertheless the orders under which both the army and navy are now operating give the commanders wide discretion and it is not doubted that should changed circumstances seem to warrant it, an aggressive movement will be begun.

A senator who talked with the military officials said there was no doubt of the outcome if the American fleet could get inside the harbor and thus place the city between the land and sea bombardments.

The arrival at Santiago of Gen. Pando with reinforcements for Linares occasioned some comment on the course of Gen. Garcia and his Cuban troops in not holding Pando back, particularly in view of the fact that Gen. Lawton's brigade was co-operating with Garcia, but it is believed the latter left Lawton in an embarrassed position. At the same time the disposition of the authorities was mainly to meet the situation now presented, rather than to question how it came about. In meeting it the most active steps toward getting large reinforcements to Gen. Shafter were in progress.

Gen. Garretson's Command Off for Santiago.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The brigade under Gen. Garretson, at Camp Alger, has been ordered to proceed at once to Santiago. The Eighth Ohio regiment goes to New York to take the cruiser St. Paul. The other regiments, the Sixth Massachusetts and the Sixth Illinois, go to Charleston, S. C., where the Yale and Harvard will be intercepted on their way North to embark these troops for Santiago.

May Be Renamed the Maine.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—It is thought at the navy department that at least one of the Spanish war vessels will fly the stars and stripes. From dispatches from Commodore Watson it seems that perhaps the Cristobal Colon was captured in such a condition that she can be readily repaired and put in commission. It has been suggested that she be renamed the Maine.

Feeding Starving Cubans.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The plan of feeding the starving Cubans is proceeding systematically, despite the attention which the authorities are obliged to give to the war. These plans are being carried out by the commissary department of the army.

To Prevent An Uprising in Spain.

LONDON, July 6.—The Madrid correspondent of the Daily Chronicle reports that unusual precautions are being taken with a view to a possible rising in Spain.

A PROCLAMATION.

The President Asks the American People to Offer Thanksgiving to Almighty God—Land and Sea Successes.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—President McKinley at 11:40 Wednesday night, issued the following proclamation to the American people:

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

At this time when to the yet fresh remembrance of the unprecedented success which attended the operations of the United States fleet in the Bay of Manila on the first day of May last, are added the tidings of the no less glorious achievements of the naval and military arms of our beloved country at Santiago de Cuba, it is fitting that we should pause, and staying the feeling of exultation that too naturally attends great deeds wrought by our countrymen in our country's cause, should reverently bow before the throne of Divine grace and give devout praise to God, who holdeth the nations in the hollow of His hands and worketh upon them the marvels of His high will, and who has thus far vouchsafed to us the light of His face and led our brave soldiers and seamen to victory.

I therefore ask the people of the United States upon next assembling for Divine worship in their respective places of meeting to offer thanksgiving to Almighty God, who, in His inscrutable ways, now leading our hosts upon the waters to unsuited triumph, now guiding them in a strange land through the dread shadows of death to success, even though at a fearful cost, now bearing them without accident or loss to far distant climes, has watched over our cause and brought nearer the success of the right and the attainment of just and honorable peace.

With the nation's thanks let there be mingled the nation's prayers that our gallant sons may be shielded from harm alike on the battle field and in the clash of fleets and be spared the scourge of suffering and disease while they are striving to uphold their country's honor; and withal let the nation's heart be still with holy awe at the thought of the noble men who have perished as heroes die and be filled with compassionate sympathy for all those who suffer bereavement or endure sickness, wounds and bonds by reason of the awful struggle. And above all, let us pray with earnest fervor, that He, the dispenser of all good, may speedily remove from us the untold afflictions of war and bring to our dear land the blessings of restored peace and to all the domain, now ravaged by the cruel strife the priceless boon of security and tranquility.

ANOTHER MAINE.

Cristobal Colon to Be Raised and Made to Fight Against Spain—The Right Arm Ordered South.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Sec. Long Wednesday morning said: Admiral Sampson requested the department to send him at once wrecking machinery, tugboats, etc. The department decided to comply with his request, and the bureau of naval ordnance ordered the tug Light Arm, that was used on the wreck of the Maine and afterward purchased by our government, to proceed to Santiago.

The Right Arm has been lying off Fortress Monroe several days, awaiting orders.

THEY MUTINIED.

Spanish Prisoners on Board the Harvard Fired Upon by the Crew—Six Killed and Twelve Wounded.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—A special dispatch to the Evening Star dated off Santiago, via Port Antonio, Jamaica, July 6, says:

After the destruction of the Spanish fleet some 450 of the men on the Maria Teresa were placed as prisoners on the Harvard. For some reason not yet ascertained these men mutinied.

The officers and crew of the Harvard were not unprepared, however, and the mutineers were fired upon. Six Spaniards were killed outright and 12 were wounded.

Cervera Coming North.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—On receipt of a dispatch from Gen. Shafter announcing that Lieut. Hobson and his crew were exchanged Wednesday morning it was announced at the navy department that Adm. Cervera and his entire staff, which are now on the St. Louis, would be sent north and kept as prisoners at the navy yard at Portsmouth, N. H. It was the intention of the administration to keep Adm. Cervera at Santiago until the fate of Lieut. Hobson was known, but as his exchange has been made it is no longer necessary.

The Bradley-Castleman Trouble.

FRANKFORT, Ky., July 7.—Friends of Gov. Bradley and Col. John B. Castleman, of the 1st regiment, are fearful of a duel between them. In discussing Castleman's interview in which he brands Gov. Bradley as a liar, poltroon and coward, the governor said Wednesday that he had received no denial from Castleman of the charges he had made against him, and that Castleman's conduct in waiting till he got to Chickamauga before applying these epithets makes him unworthy of further notice.

Upgradation—There has been so many reports of those Cuban cables being cut when they haven't been cut at all that I don't take any more stock in stories of that kind.
Atom—Yes, but it's true this time. The news about the last cable that was cut came over the cable itself.—Chicago Tribune.

Is Health Worth Ten Cents?

Man suffers many mysterious ailments from unknown causes, and nine-tenths of them have their origin in the digestive canal somewhere. It does any person good to clean out this canal occasionally in a rational way, provided it is not done in a violent manner. The proper cleansing and disinfecting preparation is Cascarets Candy Cathartic, which are very gentle, but at the same time thoroughly effective. A 10c box will purify the whole system and in most cases remove the cause of ill health. When "feeling bad" take Cascarets. They will do you good, and can do you no harm.

A SEA DISASTER.

Tremendous Loss of Life by Sinking of a French Steamer Off Sable Island.

Women and Children Had No Show for Their Lives—Men Fought Like Wild Beasts for Places in the Life Boats—A Sad Story.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 7.—The ship Cromartys, in tow of the Allan steamer Grecian, came into the harbor early Wednesday with her bow stove in and partly dismantled. She had been in collision with the French steamer La Bourgoigne off Sable Island. The latter sank with 725 people. Two hundred were saved.

La Bourgoigne sailed from New York July 2 for Havre. A large number of her passengers were Americans.

Only one woman survivor is among the saved. The only officers saved were the purser and three engineers. Thirty men belonging to the crew were also picked up. The remainder of the 200 saved are passengers.

The collision occurred at 4 o'clock in the morning of July 4. A heavy fog prevailed and the crash came almost without warning. Most of the passengers were in the staterooms. So quickly did the vessel founder that a number of these did not even have time to reach the deck and died in their staterooms.

The woman saved was Mrs. A. D. Lacasse, of Plainville, N. J. She was picked up by her husband and placed on a life raft. She clung to the raft until picked up. Another woman was with her, but was washed off the raft by the seas and drowned.

Capt. De L'Once stood on the bridge of his ship as she went down. He refused to leave the vessel and perished.

The captain of the Cromartys said: "When my ship was 60 miles off South Sable Island she was on the port tack heading west by northwest under reduced canvas, going four or five knots an hour. The foghorn was kept continuously blowing.

"Shortly after 4 a. m. I heard a steamer's whistle on our weather bow, which seemed to be nearing us very fast. I blew our horn and was answered by the steamer's whistle.

"Suddenly a steamer loomed up through the fog on our port bow and crashed into us, going at terrible speed.

"Our foremast and main topgallant masts were carried away. I immediately ordered the boats out and went to examine the damage. I found that our bow had been completely cut off and the plates twisted into every conceivable shape. Some of the men saved from the French ship say that our ship struck them amidships, making a terrific rent in her side. The steamer careened over and went down sideways.

"There was scarcely an instant left to escape from the fearful vortex, which sucked down the trembling people who managed to gain the deck. Nearly all the passengers were in their night robes. With wild, despairing shrieks and screams they clutched vainly at the life belts to save themselves from the awful deep.

The scene enacted on board La Bourgoigne just after the collision was terrible to witness. Men fought for positions in the boats like raving maniacs; men were forced back and trampled upon by the human beasts, who invoked the first law of nature and made self-preservation their first object. On board were a large number of Italians and other foreigners, who cared little for human life. These fiends stopped at nothing. In one boat was a party of 40 women, but so great was the panic that not a hand was raised to assist in her launching. The occupants so near safety were drowned like rats, when the ship, with an awful hissing sound, went down with hundreds of lives. So desperate was the situation that a passenger drew his knife and made a thrust at one who like himself was endeavoring to reach the boats. Immediately the action was initiated in every direction. Knives were flourished with deadly effect. Women and children were driven back to an inevitable death at the points of weapons, the owners of which were experts in their use.

The following is the number of persons on board: Crew, 220; passengers, first cabin, 85; second cabin, 125; steerage, 295; total, 725; saved, 200; lost, 525.

Sable Island, off the Nova Scotia coast, where the wreck occurred is a veritable ship's graveyard. Many wrecks and collisions have occurred near its fog-bound shores. La Bourgoigne was commanded by Capt. De L'Once, an experienced navigator.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Pollock, of this city, were on La Bourgoigne. Mr. Pollock is the senior member of the firm of Pollock & Mauro, and is a man of large means. They had planned to remain abroad three months.

DENVER, Col., July 7.—Bourgoigne carried one passenger from Denver, a woman—Miss Marie Picot.

NEW YORK, July 7.—In answer to a query addressed to Halifax, Wednesday, the following private dispatch was received: "Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Pollock not among saved. No cabin saved." The above telegram evidently meant that no first cabin passengers were saved.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 7.—Two of the La Bourgoigne's passengers were Bertha and Maria Flueckiger, of Allegheny City (second class passengers).

HAWAII ANNEXED.

The Resolutions Passed the Senate by a Vote of 42 to 21—The Vote Was Reached Quite Unexpectedly.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The annexation of Hawaii is now accomplished so far as the legislative branch of the government is concerned.

Quite unexpectedly the resolutions providing for the annexation of the islands were brought to a vote in the senate late Wednesday afternoon, and they were passed by the decisive vote of 42 to 21.

Early in Wednesday's session of the senate conferences of the leaders on both sides of the chamber were held and a tacit agreement was reached that a vote should be taken Thursday or Friday at the latest. The opponents of annexation practically had concluded their arguments, and as they had no desire to keep the senate in session by purely dilatory tactics, they announced their willingness that a vote should be taken as soon as Mr. White, Mr. Pettigrew and Mr. Allen had finished their speeches.

Neither Mr. White nor Mr. Pettigrew spoke at great length, but Mr. Allen thought that when he began that his speech might occupy the remainder of the day and part of Thursday. However, he concluded to eliminate a part of the matter he had prepared, and at 4:15 he completed his speech.

It was evident instantly that a vote was at hand. The word was passed swiftly through the corridors and committee rooms and in a few minutes every senator at the capitol was in his seat. The galleries filled rapidly and members of the house of representatives learning that a vote was to be taken, came hurriedly to the senate side of the great marble pile to witness proceedings that will be historic.

The test vote came upon an amendment offered by Mr. White, of California. It was offered with no expectation that it would be adopted but merely to place the ideas and opinions of the opponents of annexation on record. It was rejected by a vote of 40 to 20, indicating that the annexationists were strongly in the majority.

Amendment after amendment was offered but the advocates of the resolutions stood solidly together, gaining rather than losing strength on the successive votes.

Finally at 5:30 p. m. the resolutions themselves, in precisely the form in which they were received from the house of representatives, were reported to the senate and the roll call began. Intense interest was manifested by every spectator. Not a sound was to be heard in the chamber except the call of the clerk and the responses of the senators. When the vice president announced the vote by which the resolutions were passed a tremendous wave of applause swept through the galleries, which the vice president made no effort to check. Those who had advocated the resolutions expressed their pleasure by shaking hands with one another, and on all sides evident relief was shown that the end had come. For a few minutes so much good natured confusion existed that the dignity of the senate was threatened, but Vice President Hobart quietly reminded senators that the session was not yet at an end.

The detailed vote was as follows: Yeas—Allison, Baker, Burrows, Cannon, Carter, Clark, Cullom, Davis, Deboe, Ellkins, Fairbanks, Foraker, Frye, Gallinger, Gorman, Hale, Hanna, Hansbrough, Hawley, Hoar, Kyle, Lodge, McBride, McLaurin, Money, Morgan, Nelson, Penrose, Perkins, Pettus, Platt (Cal.), Pritchard, Proctor, Sewell, Shoup, Sullivan, Teller, Warren, Wellington, Wetmore, Wilson, Wolcott—42.

Nays—Allen, Bacon, Bate, Berry, Caffery, Chilton, Clay, Daniel, Faulkner, Jones (Ark.), Lindsay, McHenry, Mallory, Mitchell, Morrill, Paseo, Pettigrew, Roach, Turley, Turpie, White—21.

There are 12 pairs announced as follows, the names of those who would have voted in the affirmative being given first in each instance: Rawlins with Butler; Chandler with Vest; Murphy with Cockrell; Quay with Gray; Stewart with Mills; Smith with Gear; Aldrich with Jones (Ark.); McMillan with Kenney; Mantle with Martin; Platt with Spooner; Turner with Thurston; Mason with Tillman.

Senators Harris and Heitfeld were absent unpaired, but the announcement was made by their respective colleagues if present they would vote for the resolutions.

CERVERA'S SORTIE.

Scheme of Escape From the Harbor Well Discussed by the Officers.

The Capture of the Cristobal Colon—The Vessel Not Seriously Damaged, Although Struck by Several Shots—Schley's Maneuvering.

OFF SANTIAGO DE CUBA, July 4, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 6.—Adm. Cervera held a consultation with his officers before coming out of the harbor of Santiago, and by a small majority the move was agreed upon. The minority said that destruction was sure, as many of the firemen had mutinied and the best men in the fleet were worn out by serving the guns in the shore batteries.

Early on the morning of the sortie careful observations were taken of the sea, east and west. Adm. Cervera decided upon taking the westward course with Manzanillo, Cienfuegos or if possible Havana the port to be reached. He would have gone east but for the sighting of a large transport fleet off Siboney and the assurance that a convoy of war vessels was still with the transports.

Naval men here are sure that the Spanish vessels could have disabled or sunk the New York and escaped had the eastward course been chosen.

It was feared for a time by many that some of the sailors and officers who swam ashore from the Vizcaya, the Almirante Oquendo and the Maria Teresa were killed by the insurgents, who were seen in the chapparel near the beach. This could not be verified at this writing as no accurate estimate of the loss to the Spanish fleet was obtainable.

COMMODORE SCHLEY.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Representative Berry, of Kentucky, Tuesday introduced in the house a joint resolution tendering the thanks of congress to Commodore Schley and officers and men under his command for the destruction of the Spanish fleet.

It is claimed that one shell killed 100 men on the Vizcaya, raking the vessel fore and aft.

OFF SANTIAGO DE CUBA, July 4, 6 p. m., via Kingston, Jamaica, July 6.—After a chase of 60 miles to the westward, the Brooklyn, closely followed by the Oregon, overhauled the Cristobal Colon after she had run ashore and had hauled down her flags. Capt. Cook, of the Brooklyn, went on board of her and the commander of the Spanish armored cruiser came forward to surrender and was taken on board the New York, which came up an hour after the Brooklyn and Oregon had completed the capture of the Cristobal Colon. The latter was not seriously damaged, though she was struck several times by shots from the Brooklyn and Oregon.

During the chase a clever maneuver of Commodore Schley in heading due west to Cape Caney, while the Cristobal Colon had taken a more southerly direction with a much greater distance to cover rendered the Spaniards escape impossible. There seems to be no doubt that the Cristobal Colon, and perhaps the other three Spanish armored cruisers would have escaped had it not been for the prompt action of Commodore Schley. The Brooklyn, his flagship, alone was in a position to attack the Spanish vessels as they left the harbor and the commodore steamed directly towards them and engaged all four cruisers, inflicting great damage upon them.

The Oregon was the first to join the Brooklyn, and afterward the Iowa, Indiana, Texas and Vixen closed around the Spaniards, all pouring in a deadly fire, but from the beginning to the end of the fight the Brooklyn, Oregon and Gloucester took the most important part in the destruction of the enemy.

One man, George Henry Ellis, was killed on board the Brooklyn. His head was blown off by a shell.

The Strike a Failure. CHICAGO, July 6.—For the first time since Friday morning the Tribune, Record, Chronicle, Times-Herald and Inter-Ocean were issued Tuesday morning. A sufficient number of outside non-union stereotypers have been imported into the city to make this possible.

Death of Dr. Herz. LONDON, July 6.—Dr. Cornelius Herz, of Panama canal notoriety, died at Bournemouth at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning.

THE MAINE AVENGED.

The Destruction of Spanish Ships Reminded Commander Wainwright of a Similar Scene at Havana.

OFF SANTIAGO DE CUBA, July 5, via Port Antonio, Jamaica, July 6, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 6.—The first and only statement concerning the recent naval battle made by the Spanish commander, Adm. Cervera, was to a correspondent on board the battleship Iowa. It was as follows: "I would rather lose my ships at sea, like a sailor, than in a harbor. It was the only thing left for me to do."

PORT ANTONIO, Jamaica, July 5, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 6.—For hours after Adm. Cervera went aboard the Gloucester the Infanta Maria Teresa, Almirante Oquendo and Vizcaya continued to burn, and every now and then a deep roar, accompanied by a burst of flame and smoke from the sides of the ship would announce the explosion of more ammunition or another magazine.

As the flames shot higher and higher above the decks of the magnificent vessels that had composed Adm. Cervera's fleet, many of those who witnessed the scene felt it had a strong connection with the destruction of the American battleship Maine in Havana harbor five months ago. Lieut. Commander Wainwright, the commander of the Gloucester, was executive officer on the Maine at the time of the disaster and, although he remained in Havana harbor two months after the explosion, he lived on board the dispatch boat Fern and steadfastly refused to set foot within the city until, to use his own words, the time should come when he could go ashore at the head of a land-

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

First Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—SENATE.—Late Thursday afternoon the senate cleared the legislative decks for what may be the final action upon the Hawaiian annexation resolutions. Through its action Thursday the last of the appropriation bills that has been pending in conference was disposed of and the senate before midnight. After a debate lasting three hours the senate finally receded from its amendments to the sundry civil and adopted the conference report on Indian appropriation bill. Mr. Allison (Ia.) in charge of the bills, explained that it was necessary that the reports should be agreed to Thursday, as that was the last day of the fiscal year. He pointed out that if the bills were not laws by midnight, they would have to be passed again by the two branches of congress.

HOUSE.—An attempt to secure the passage of the bill to incorporate the International American bank met with determined opposition Thursday in the house. The bill was introduced in the house, but it was not effective in preventing the consideration of the bill. Adjournment, however, was forced before a vote upon the measure could be reached. It will be used Friday. The house Thursday adopted the report upon the Indian appropriation bill, insisted unanimously upon its disagreements to the senate amendments to the sundry civil bill and sent the general deficiency bill to conference.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—SENATE.—For nearly six hours Friday the senate had under discussion the Hawaiian annexation resolutions. The first formal speech in favor of the resolution was delivered by Mr. Pettus (dem. Ala.). His address was strong and patriotic. As a democrat he maintained that the question was in no sense a party issue, but the proposition was one which ought to be decided on its merits. He had a heated colloquy with Mr. Caffery (dem. La.), in the course of which the latter intimated that the Alabama senator was afflicted with senility. Mr. Pettus' retort was vigorous and resolute. He termed an insult Mr. Caffery subsequently disclaimed any intention of insulting Mr. Pettus.

HOUSE.—Friday's session of the house was of little legislative interest. A few private bills were passed and some conference reports of minor importance were adopted. Adjournment, which involved the abandonment of the evening pension session, was taken until Tuesday. Mr. McCleary (rep. Minn.), of the committee on banking and currency, who presented the recent report upon the banking and currency bill, arose in the house to a question of personal privilege, reading from a Washington paper in which the committee was charged with plagiarism in taking much of its report from the June number of the Journal of Banking. He denied the charge.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—SENATE.—The senate was the only house of congress in session Monday. Resolutions calling upon the secretary of war for information as to experiments with explosives and inventions were passed and consideration of the Hawaiian resolutions was resumed. Mr. Allen (Neb.) opposed the resolution. He laid down the proposition that annexation involved the abandonment of the Monroe doctrine and the traditional foreign policy of this country. He declared that Porto Rico, Cuba and the Philippines should be made independent, Spain should pay the entire cost of the war and the war should not end with any increase of this government's territorial possessions. At noon Senator Turpie (Ind.) read the Declaration of Independence. During the session a large number of pension bills were passed.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—SENATE.—The debate upon the Hawaiian resolutions continued in the senate. Three speeches were made. Mr. Hoar (Mass.) in advocating annexation made a notable speech against it, and any policy of general territorial expansion as a sequence to the war. Mr. Lindsay (Ky.) opposed the resolutions directing his attack principally against their constitutionality. Mr. White (Cal.) resumed his speech in opposition.

HOUSE.—Representative Berry, of Kentucky, a member of the house committee on foreign affairs, Tuesday introduced the following joint resolution: "Joint resolution tendering the thanks of congress to Schley, U. S. N., and the officers and men under his command. Resolved, That the thanks of congress and of the American people are hereby tendered to Commodore Schley, U. S. N., and the officers and men under his command, for their heroic and distinguished conduct in destroying the Spanish fleet in Cuban waters on the third of July last." The resolution was referred to the naval affairs committee.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—SENATE.—Pettigrew's resolutions to annex the islands of Hawaii passed the senate late Wednesday afternoon by a vote of 42 to 21. The resolutions as passed were amended by the senate. The president of the senate and speaker of the house signed the document and the president will attach his signature Thursday. Several amendments were voted down.

HOUSE.—The house Wednesday, after a debate of four hours concurred in the senate amendment to the general deficiency bill authorizing the secretary of the interior, the attorney general and the secretary of the treasury to settle with the approval of the president the indebtedness of the Central and Western Pacific roads to the government. The amendment was concurred in by a vote of 96 to 86. An amendment was offered and adopted to the Pacific railroad amendment providing that unless settlement was reached within one year, the president should begin foreclosure proceedings to collect all money due the government. During the day Messrs. Hilborn (rep. Cal.), McRae (dem. Ark.), Newlands (dem. Nev.), Castle (pop. Cal.), Barlow (pop. Cal.), Devries (dem. Cal.), Fleming (dem. Ga.) spoke in opposition while Messrs. Grow (rep. Pa.) Grosvenor (rep. O.), Hepburn (rep. Ia.) and Cannon (rep. Ill.) supported the amendment. The conference reports upon the bills to increase the force of the ordnance department and to protect harbor defenses and fortifications against injury were adopted. The bill granting an American registry to the steamship Titania of San Francisco was passed. It was also another authorizing the construction of a bridge over the Yalobusha river in LeFlore county, Miss., by the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley R. R. At 4:35 p. m. the house adjourned.

Coal Miners Strike. PINEVILLE, Ky., July 6.—All miners at Bear Creek coal mines, which are being operated by Michigan capitalists, are on a strike, and are leaving for Americas, Ga., mines. The cause of the strike was over the company discharging a union man. About 250 men compose the strike. The sheriff has attached several of the miners' household goods who are leaving the state, and this has delayed the miners from leaving, but they settled with the sheriff Tuesday afternoon and will go away at once.

Adm. Camara Must Get Out. SEZ, July 7.—The Spanish fleet commanded by Adm. Camara has arrived here and has been notified by the officials of the Egyptian government that it must leave this port within 24 hours. The government has also notified Adm. Camara that he will not be allowed to coal here.

Congress Will Adjourn Soon. WASHINGTON, July 7.—Senator Allison expressed the opinion Wednesday that congress would adjourn before the close of the present week.

Correspondence From Mackinac.

Mackinac Island,
July 4th.

The stars and stripes and the union jack floated together over an Anglo-American social event Saturday in Canada, the members of the K. P. A. being the guests of the M. B. Walker Co., the English distillers, being the hosts. The occasion was the visit of the Kentucky editors to the mammoth distillery of the Walkers, in Walkerville, and royalty were the Kentuckians entertained. After inspecting the immense distillery, the warehouses, beautiful grounds and the handsomely furnished bank and offices of the Walkers, the visiting editors were royally entertained at a handsome luncheon served on the lawn which is washed by the beautiful river. While a fine orchestra rendered "America," "God Save the Queen," "Yankee Doodle," "Dixie" and "Old Kentucky Home," uniformed waiters served salad, biscuits, sandwiches, Neapolitan ice-cream, candy, almonds, claret punch, champagne and seltzer and passed around cigars and cigarettes. Then the generous hosts distributed handsome souvenirs and had their guests photographed standing on the steps of the bank. Besides the editorial party were present Mr. Harry Boulden and Miss Lilly Boulden (late of Millersburg) of Detroit. The hosts and guests pledged the health, the happiness, the prosperity and the party friendship of the United States and England. And the stars and stripes and the union jack waved together.

The Kentucky contingent then crossed Detroit, the beautiful City of Straits—some enjoying trolley rides over the city and some to visit the far famed park, lovely Belle Isle, one of the prettiest spots in America. The writer was charmingly entertained that evening by Miss Charlotte Preston, who is well known in Paris, at an elegant dinner at the swell home of the Detroit Boat Club. The club house is situated at Belle Isle and is a handsome structure with wide piazzas and a superb ball room. The club is composed of Detroit's best people.

At eleven o'clock Saturday night the K. P. A. sailed on the D. & C. Steamer City of Mackinac for the famous Mackinac Island. The lake trip was delightful, though the boat rolled a bit several times. Some of the passengers really gave up everything on account of the trip—yea, every bite. But speaking of seasickness I heard a way to amply describe the sensation by saying "the first hour you are sick you are afraid you are going to die, and the second you are afraid that you won't."

At five-thirty on the morning of the glorious Fourth the K. P. A. crowd, shivering from cold, and filled with admiration of the magnificent scenery, reached the beautiful Mackinac Island, proceeding at once to the Grand Hotel, which overlooks the village. The K. P. A. crowd is probably the merriest crowd that ever captured the hotel, and it has things its own way. The Fourth was celebrated yesterday by the occasional bang of a fire-cracker, by visiting the points of interest on the island, by a business meeting, and last night by Fourth of July speeches and a complimentary ball given at the big Casino. Cupid also took a trick at the Casino, the marriage of editor Stuart, of Southern Kentucky, to an Ohio widow, occurring just before the dance began. They were given a charivari last night.

Camp Corbin Notes.

A fence was built around Camp Corbin Tuesday to assist the guards in preventing the homesick mountain boys from deserting. It is estimated that there have been 150 desertions during the past week. All possible haste is being made to get the companies mustered so as to hold the men. Captain Beatty's company was mustered in Tuesday, making the second that has been sworn in.

First Assistant Postmaster-General Heath said in answer to inquiries made in regard to the postal service to Cuba and the Philippines as to whether letters could be sent to or from persons other than soldiers and sailors, that the mail service to these places is precisely the same as to any port of the United States, and mail will be transmitted to any one. The postage to be affixed is the same as upon the ordinary mail carried by the postoffice in the case of letters, being two cents for each ounce or fraction thereof. These rules will apply to any postoffices established in territory occupied by United States forces.

Milton Young, the noted turfman, has sent to Lieut. Desha Breckinridge a charger which has been the hero in a number of battles on the turf. This famous horse is the bay gelding Strathmeath, winner of the American Derby, Junior Champion, etc. His days as a racehorse are over, and he was given to Mr. Young, who has in turn presented him to his friend to ride in war. Mr. Breckinridge will ship at the same time a saddle horse, which he has purchased for his uncle, Major General Joseph Breckinridge.

AN APPARITION.

The burglar entered. He carefully reconnoitered, then rose and walked lightly but boldly to the bed. The gas was burning dimly, revealing in the lace draped couch a 4-year-old child. Her fleecy curls were tossed round her flushed face, and the restless movements, the frown of pain on the white forehead, showed plainly that she was not sleeping the sleep of perfect health.

"Kid looks bad," commented Brickey, looking down a moment on the pretty picture. "Nurse skipped to make a night of it and locked the kid in to get along all by herself alone. Blamed if she ain't put the lamb to bed with that cold, shiny necklace—a chokin' her. She shan't be choked—no, she shan't!"

Stooping, the benevolent visitor loosened the slender coral chain deftly from the dimpled neck.

"Brickey brace! brickey-brace!" he muttered disparagingly. "Too much! Piles of money spent on trash that ain't worth carryin' off, on the town full of suffering burglars. It's a shame. Hello!"

He turned round quickly at a queer sound from the bed, and put his hand on the ugly looking weapon at his side.

The strange choking sound had come from her. The dimpled arms were tossed over her head, and the face drawn and crimson in an effort to breathe. One brassy cough told the story.

"The duce! The young one's got the croup!"

He looked down on the suffering child with something like pity in his tough soul. "An shu'll choke in a jiffy. I'd like to have that nurse by the back of the neck just a minute! Goin' off an leavin' that sick kid with a burglar. Burglars ain't no trained nurses!"

The child seemed to breathe easier just then.

"That's the ticket! Maybe she'll pull through. But it's gettin' early. What's this?"

A fine old oil painting hung on the opposite end of the room. It was of a very precise, very stiff, very aristocratic elderly woman in a cool scuttle bonnet, and everything about her suggestive of rigid respectability. On the corner of the picture frame hung that same bonnet, yellow with age.

"Family relic," said Brickey, giving way to his humor, and detaching the bonnet from its peg he put it on his own head. "If the boys could see me now!"

Another brassy, ringing cough from the bed drew Brickey's attention from millinery.

"Something ought to be done," Brickey muttered anxiously. "Somebody ought to be called. The kid's chokin' to death." It is probable that the little child would have perished "unaided by the physicians," but for a sudden idea that visited Brickey's fertile brain just then, and which caused him to double up with laughter.

Across the bed was a dusky coverlet of fairy white lace. With the bonnet still on his head, Brickey draped this round his greasy clothes from neck to heels.

Passing softly into the passage, he looked round a minute; then tried a door on the opposite side.

"Locked tight an right across from the darlin'! This is the parents' room, I'll bet," was Brickey's reflection as his skeleton key opened the lock noiselessly.

The dim light from a dying fire revealed on the bed a middle aged woman with much the same severely respectable features as the picture in the child's room. A gentle snore arose from her thin and correct nose as the ghostly figure glided across the room.

It took a brief look at the dressing table, made a mysterious pass over a heavy jewel case, at which the case vanished strangely; then turned toward the bed.

But let Mrs. Hopkins tell the rest just as she has told it scores of times since to wondering friends and just as she wrote it up for the Society of Mythical Research immediately after:

"I had been sleeping, Henry being away on important business in the country at the time. I was awakened by the distinct impression of a cold hand in contact with my brow. I started; I opened my eyes. Before me, distinctly visible in the evanescent light of the expiring embers, stood my deceased mother, Belvidere Prosperina Dowdall, in her habit as she lived.

The same bonnet, even, in which her picture was taken over 50 years ago!—here the bonnet was invariably produced, handed round and viewed with awe. "A misty aureole seemed to surround her form.

"I sprang upright! She seemed to recede. I was speechless! She looked down on me sadly, warningly and waved her hand!"

"Go to your child!" she said. "Go to your child!"

"Then she seemed to fade away through the open door, which I positively recalled having locked when I retired.

"I seemed impelled to follow. I was irresistibly drawn toward my daughter's room. There I found the reason of this most extraordinary manifestation. The nurse had surreptitiously slipped away to spend the night in the servants' hall. My child was writhing in the convulsions of croup. It was only by the most strenuous exertions that we saved her life. But for my dear mother's timely appearance she would have died."

Just then a dead silence of creepy wonder always falls on the deeply impressed company, and Mrs. Hopkins' husband, sitting meekly back in a corner, knows better than to suggest a connection between the burgled house, open windows and Mistress Belvidere's ghost. He did it once. He won't do it again.—London News.

Won, but Walked Home.

As the shades of night were closing out a holiday of more than pleasant memory there strode across Barnes common, heading for Hammersmith bridge, an occasional racegoer with metaphorical popples in his hair. And presently he encountered one who knew him.

"Hello, Froggit!" cried this person.

"What's up? Doing it for your liver?"

"No, dear boy," replied Froggit, "I am making the best of my way home, and if my boots hold out I reckon to pass the 'Nag's Head' at Holloway in about two hours' time."

"And where have you come from?"

"Kempston park races. I had £70 to £10 about the first winner!"

"Never! Then why are you walking?"

"Oh, ye of simple faith," exclaimed Froggit, raising his left boot and tearing a fragment of worn leather from the heel, "there were six races after that!"—London Judy.

OBITUARY.

Respectfully Dedicated To The Memory Of The Dead.

Grant Green, Cashier Farmers' National Bank, and ex-State Auditor, died at Frankfort, Wednesday.

Will K. Carlisle, son of ex-Secretary Carlisle, and his only remaining child, died at his residence in New York at an early hour Tuesday morning of typhoid fever.

John H. Erion, the well-known architect, of this city, died Wednesday morning at his home on Convent Heights, after a lingering illness of consumption. The deceased is survived by his wife Mrs. Daisy Sweeney Erion, who has faithfully nursed him during his long illness. Mr. Erion had a host of friends here and elsewhere who will mourn his death, and many tributes are paid to the fine genius of the deceased, who has left many handsome buildings as monuments to his name and skill as an architect. In his last hours his mind clung tenaciously to his latest work—the erection of the new Bourbon Bank building in this city—and he made alterations in the plans this week. The funeral was held yesterday, at 4:30 at the Christian Church, conducted by Revs. Rutherford and Eberhardt. The following were pall-bearers: J. W. Thomas, Jr., Harvey Hibler, W. T. Talbot, E. B. January, Sherman Stivers and C. B. Daugherty.

Kentucky Gets Big Money For War Horses.

Lexington dealers have sold to the army officers about six hundred head of cavalry and artillery horses—besides a large number of army mules. Kentucky has furnished a vast amount of horse stock, as it is estimated that Lieut. Brint has expended at least $140,000 in this direction for Uncle Sam in Kentucky alone, to say nothing of what Capt. Aleshire, Capt. Swigert and others have paid for horses and mules. It is a safe estimate to say the amount paid for horses by the Government in Kentucky is at least a third of a million dollars.

THE LUMP FISH.

Unusually in Shape, But Beautiful in Color—A Specimen Now at the New York Aquarium.

Among a number of fish lately received at the aquarium is a lump fish, from Gravesend bay. The lump fish is ungainly in shape and clumsy in action, but its coloring makes it beautiful. Looked at broadside on, its outline is something like that of a flat fish, but, in the cross section, the lump fish is something like a tall triangle, running up to a point at the top and being thickest near the lower part of the body, while almost flat across the belly. On the under part of the body, just back of the head, the lump fish has a sucking disk, by means of which it attaches itself to rocks or any other object. Sometimes it lies on the bottom. It has a small head and mouth and little eyes.

The lump fish is sometimes green and sometimes brown in color. The one now at the aquarium, which is about half grown and six or seven inches in length, is a green fish. On some parts of the body the green shades into gray, but green is the fish's distinguishing color, shading from a coppery green into a paler tint and so into the gray. The colors are not dull, but they are without luster.

The aquarium has had at different times two or three lump fish before this one, but none of them lived long. It is a fish difficult to keep in captivity, and none of those here before could be persuaded to eat. This one, however, is eating with a pretty fair appetite. It lives at present on shrimps, which are partly stunned before placing them in the water, which makes it easier for the lump fish to get them. It eats shrimps in nature when it gets a chance, closing up on them gradually when they lie motionless on a stone or pile, and finally with a sudden motion nabbing them. It would do it here if it had a chance. As it is, the shrimp are fed to it.

The lump fish is perhaps attracted by its disk to the side of the tank near the bottom. A deadened shrimp is dropped into the water at the top. The lump fish appears to know instantly of its presence; it inches up a little on the side of the tank, still, however, keeping its hold. But the shrimp continues to drop down straight through the water, and the lump fish waits for it. The shrimp comes so close that the fish can get it by bending its head to one side without letting go. But other shrimps may have a little more life and drop through the water beyond reach, and the lump fish lets go and swims off to get them, most likely coming back to attach itself to the wall again, but up nearer the top.

The lump fish is slow in movement and not quick in its eating. The shrimp is naturally very quick in its movements, as is shown here in a curious way. A shrimp that had been partially stunned, and had been taken in by the lump fish, recovered its strength in the fish's mouth and before it had been swallowed, and before the languid fish could close its mouth the shrimp had flashed out and darted away.—N. Y. Sun.

SOLDIER'S LIFE EASIER.

His Means of Protection, Weapons and Food Are Much Improved of Late Years.

Although soldiering would seem to be a more perilous business than it ever was before, in consequence of the greater force, rapidity and range of weapons, and the higher power of explosives, the result may show that modern battles are not more deadly than were those in the civil war, since an attempt has been made to counteract the destructive forces by stouter protections in forts and by a system of tactics that replaces the old solid formations with something like the skirmish order of former times. It may be also that the troops will fight at further distance, allowing for the longer carriage of bullets and shells.

But of one thing we are certain. If the perils of war have been multiplied the comforts of the camp have been increased until they are a partial offset. Clothing is stouter, if the millers choose to make it so; camp outfits include cooking apparatus that can be carried on the back of one man; the canning of meats, vegetables and fruits, the desiccation of other articles of food, and the general cheapening of many things that were luxuries a few years ago make it possible to live in camp almost as in a hotel. The substitution of aluminum for iron in utensils is another advantage, and in general there is a tendency to both lightness of outfit and extension of properties contained in it.

In addition to the articles provided by the government in its clothing and ration allowances, the man with a gun is now allowed to buy and have pipes, tobacco, soap, writing materials, pens, basins, blacking brushes, silk handkerchiefs, matches, towels and an addition to his menu in cheese, canned goods, dried fruits, deviled ham, preserves, white sugar, lime juice, Worcestershire sauce, pickles, jam, ginger, spices and cranberry sauce. Rum is discontinued in hot countries, for it encourages sunstroke and intensifies other troubles peculiar to the climate. A sutler who should set up a claret punch and ice cream shop in a camp would become a bondholder in a few months.—Brooklyn Eagle.

LIFE PATHS.

It's a wonderful world we're in, my dear. A wonderful world, they say. And, best of all, they say, wherever you wander free, wherever a wish might stray, who spread their sails to the Arctic gales, or bask in the tropic's bowers, while we must keep to the footpath steep in this workaday life of ours.

For smooth is the road for the few, my dear, and wide are the ways they roam; our feet are led where the million tread, in the worn, old lanes of home, and the years may flow for woe or woe, and the frost may follow the flowers, our steps are bound to the selfsame round in this workaday life of ours.

But narrow our path may be, my dear, and simple the scenes we view, a heart like thine and a love like mine will carry us bravely through. With a happy song we'll trudge along, and smile in the shine or showers, and we'll ease the pack on a brother's back by this workaday life of ours.

—Joe Lincoln, in L. A. W. Bulletin.

TREASURE ISLAND
ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

PART VI.

CHAPTER XXX.—CONTINUED.

Silver was a changed man, once he was out there and had his back on his friends and the black-house; his cheeks seemed to have fallen in; his voice trembled; never was a soul more dead in earnest.

"Why, John, you're not afraid?" asked Dr. Livesey.

"Doctor, I'm no coward; no, not I—not so much!" he snapped his fingers. "If I was I wouldn't say it. But I'll own up fairly I've the shakes upon me for the gulls. You're a good man and a true; I never see a better man! And you'll not forget what I done good, not any more than you'll forget the bad, I know. And I step aside—see here—and leave you and Jim alone. And you'll put that down for me, too, for it's a long stretch, is that?"

So saying, he stepped back a little way to whistle; spinning round and there sat upon a tree-stump and began a sight sometimes of us and the doctor, and sometimes of his unruly ruffians as they went to and fro in the sand, between the fire—which they were busy rekindling—and the house, from which they brought forth pork and bread to make the breakfast.

"So, Jim," said the doctor, sadly, "here you are. As you have brewed, so shall you drink, my boy. Heaven knows, I cannot find it in my heart to blame you; but this much I will say, be it kind or unkind: when Capt. Smollett was well, you dared not have gone off; and when he was ill, and couldn't help it, by George, it was downright cowardly!"

I will own that I here began to weep. "Doctor," I said, "you might spare me. I have blamed myself enough; my life's forfeited anyway, and I should have been dead now, if Silver hadn't stood for me; and, doctor, believe this, I can die—and I dare say I deserve it—but what I fear is torture. If they come to torture me—"

"Jim," the doctor interrupted, and his voice was quite changed, "Jim, I can't have this. Whip over, and we'll run for it."

"Doctor," said I, "I passed my word." "I know, I know," he cried. "We can't help that, Jim, now. I'll take it on my shoulders, holus bolus, blame and shame, my boy; but stay here, I cannot help you. Jump! One jump, and you're out, and we'll run for it like antelope!"

"No," I replied, "you know right well you wouldn't do the thing yourself; neither you nor the squire, nor captain; and no more will I. Silver trusted me; I passed my word, and back I go. But, doctor, you did not let me finish. If they come to torture me, I might let slip a word where the ship is; for I got the ship, partly by luck and partly by risk, and she lies in North inlet, on the southern beach, and just below high water. At half-tide she must be high and dry."

"The ship!" exclaimed the doctor.

Rapidly I described to him my adventures, and he heard me out in silence. "There is a kind of fate in this," he observed when I had done. "Every step it's you that saves our lives; and do you suppose by any chance we are going to let you lose yours? That would be a poor return, my boy. You found out the plot; you found Ben Gunn—the best deed that ever you did, or will do, though you live to ninety. Oh, by Jupiter! and talking of Ben Gunn, why, this is the mischief in person. Silver!" he cried; "Silver! I'll give you a piece of advice," he continued, as the cook drew near again; "don't you be in any great hurry after that treasure."

"Why, sir, I do my possible, which that ain't," said Silver. "I can only, taking your pardon, save my life and the boy's by seeking for that treasure, and you may lay to that."

"Well, Silver," replied the doctor, "if that is so, I'll go one step further; look out for squalls when you find it!"

"Sir," said Silver, "as between man and man, that's too much and too little. What you're after, why you left the black-house, why you give me that there chart, I don't know now, do I? And yet I done your bidding with my eyes shut, and never a word of hope! But no, this here's too much. If you won't tell me what you mean plain out, just say so, and I leave the helm."

"No," said the doctor, musingly, "I've no right to say more; it's not my secret, you see, Silver, or I give you my word, I'd tell it to you. But I'll go as far with you as I dare go, and a step beyond, for I'll have my vigors for the captain. Or I'm mistaken! And, first, I'll give you a bit of hope; Silver, if we both get alive out of this wolf-trap, I'll do my best to save you, short of perjury." Silver's face was radiant. "You couldn't say more, I'm sure, sir, not if you was my mother," he cried. "Well, that's my first concession," added the doctor. "My second is a piece of advice: Keep the boy close beside you, and when you need help, halloo. I'm off to seek for you, and that itself will show you if I speak at random. Good-by, Jim."

And Dr. Livesey shook hands with me through the stockade, nodded to Silver, and set off at a brisk pace into the wood.

CHAPTER XXXI.

THE TREASURE HUNT—FLINT'S POINT.

"Jim," said Silver, when we were alone, "if I saved your life, you saved mine; and I'll not forget it. I seen the doctor waving you to run for it—with the tail of my eye, I did; and I seen you say no, as plain as hearing. Jim, that's one to you. This is the first glint of hope I had since the attack failed, and I owe it to you. And now, Jim, we're to go in for this here treasure-hunting, with sealed orders, too, and I don't like it; and you and me must stick close, back to back like, and we'll save our necks in spite of fate and fortune."

Just then a man hailed us from the fire that breakfast was ready, and we were soon seated here and there about the sand over biscuit and fried junk. They had lighted a fire fit to roast an ox; and it was now grown so hot that they could only approach it from the windward, and even then without precaution. In the same wasteful spirit, they had cooked, I suppose, three times more than we could eat; and one of them, with an empty laugh, threw what was left into the fire, which blazed and roared again over this unusual fuel. I never in my life saw men so careless of the morrow; hand to mouth is the only word that can describe their way of doing; and what with wasted food and sleeping sentries, though they were bold enough for a brush and be done with it, I could see their entire unfitness for anything like a prolonged campaign.

Even Silver, eating away, with Capt. Flint upon his shoulder, had not a word of blame for their recklessness. And this the more surprised me, for I thought he had never shown himself so cunning as he did then.

"Ay, mates," said he, "it's lucky you have Barbecue to think for you with this here head. I got what I wanted, I did. Sure enough, they have the ship. Where they have it, I don't know yet; but once we hit the treasure, we'll have to jump about and find out. And then, mates, us that has the boats, I reckon, has the upper hand."

Thus he kept running on, with his mouth full of the hot bacon; with his restored hope and confidence, and, I more than suspect, repaired his own at the same time.

"As for hostage," he continued, "that's his last talk, I guess, with them he loves so dear. I've got my piece of news, and thank you to him for that; but it's over and done. I'll take him in a line when we go treasure-hunting, for we'll keep him like so much gold, in case of accidents, you mark, and in the meantime, once we got the ship and treasure both, and off to sea like jolly companions, why, then we'll talk Mr. Hawkins over, we will, and we'll give him his share, to be sure, for all his kindness."

It was no wonder the men were in a good humor now. For my part, I was horribly cast down. Should the scheme he had now sketched prove feasible, Silver, already doubly a traitor, would not hesitate to adopt it. He had still a foot in either camp, and there was no doubt he would prefer wealth and freedom with the pirates to a bare escape from hanging, which was the best he had to hope on our side.

Nay, and even if things so fell out that he was forced to keep his faith with Dr. Livesey, even then what danger lay before us! What a moment that would be when the suspicions of his followers turned to certainty, and he and I should have to fight for dear life—he, a cripple, and I, a boy—against five strong and active seamen!

Add to this double apprehension, the mystery that still hung over the behavior of my friends; their unexplained desertion of the stockade; their inexplicable cession of the chart; or, harder still to understand, the doctor's last warning to Silver: "Look out for squalls when you find it; and you will readily believe how little taste I found in my breakfast, and with how uneasy a heart I set forth behind my captors on the quest for treasure."

We made a curious figure had anyone been there to see us; all in soiled sailor clothes, and all but me armed to the teeth. Silver had two guns slung about him, one before and one behind—besides the great cutlass at his waist, and a pistol in each pocket of his square-tailed coat. To complete his strange appearance, Capt. Flint sat perched upon his shoulder and gabbled odds and ends of purposeless sea-talk. I had a line about my waist, and followed obediently after the sea-cook, who held the loose end of the rope, now in his free hand, now between his powerful teeth. For all the world I was led like a dancing bear.

The other men were variously burdened, some carrying picks and shovels—for that had been the very first necessary they brought ashore from the "Hispaniola"—others laden with pork, bread and brandy for the midday meal. All the stores, I observed, came from our stock; and I could see the truth of Silver's words the night before. Had he not struck a bargain with the doctor he and his mutineers, deserted by the ship, must have been driven to subsist on clear water, and the proceeds of their hunting. Water would have been little to their taste; a sailor is not usually a good shot; and, besides all that, when they were so short of eatables, it was not likely they would be very flush of powder.

Well, thus equipped, we all set out—even the fellow with the broken head, who should certainly have kept in shade ow—and struggled, one after another, to the beach, where the two gigs awaited us. Even these bore trace of the drunken folly of the pirates, one in a broken thwart, and both in their muddled, unbailed condition. Both were to be carried along with us, for the sake of safety; and so, with our numbers divided between them, we set forth upon the bosom of the anchorage.

As we pulled over there was some discussion on the chart. The red cross was, of course, far too large to be a guide; and the terms of the note on the back, as you will hear, admitted of some ambiguity. They ran, the reader may remember, thus:

"Tall tree, Spy-glass, shoulder, bearing a point to the N. of N. E.
"Skeleton Island, E. S. E. and by E.
"Ten feet."

A tall tree was thus the principal mark. Now, right before us, the anchorage was bounded by a plateau from two to three hundred feet high, adjoining on the north the sloping southern shoulder of the Spy-glass, and rising again toward the south into the rough, cliffy eminence called the Mizzen-mast Hill. The top of the plateau was dotted thickly with pine trees of varying height. Every here and there, one of a different species rose forty or fifty feet clear above its neighbors, and which of these was the particular "tall tree" of Capt. Flint could only be decided on the spot, and by readings of the compass.

Yet, although that was the case, every man on board the boats had picked a favorite of his own ere we were half-way over. Long John alone shrugging his shoulders and bidding them wait till they were there.

We pulled easily by Silver's directions, not to weary the hands prematurely; and, after quite a long passage, landed at the mouth of the second river—that which runs down a woody cleft of the Spy-glass. Thence, bending to our left, we began to ascend the slope toward the plateau.

At the first outset, heavy, miry ground and a matted, marsh vegetation greatly delayed our progress; but by little and little the hill began to steepen and become stony underfoot, and the wood to change its character and to grow in a more open order. It was, indeed, a most pleasant portion of the island that we were now approaching. A heavy-scented bloom and many flowering shrubs had almost taken the place of grass. Thickets of green nutmeg trees were dotted here and there with the red columns and the broad shadow of the pines; and the first mingled their spice with the aroma of the others. The air, besides, was fresh and stirring, and this, under the sheer sunbeams, was a wonderful refreshment to our senses.

The party spread itself abroad, in a fan shape, shouting and leaping to and fro. About the center, and a good way behind the rest, Silver and I followed—I tethered by my rope, he plowing, with deep pants, among the sliding gravel. From time to time, indeed, I had to lend him a hand, or he must have missed his footing and fallen backward down the hill.

We had thus proceeded for about half a mile, and were approaching the brow of the plateau, when the man upon the furthest left began to cry aloud, as if in terror. Shout after shout came from him, and the others began to run in his direction.

"He can't have found the treasure," said old Morgan, hurrying past us from the right, "for that's clean a-top."

Indeed, as we found when we also reached the spot, it was something very different. At the foot of a pretty big pine, and involved in a green creeper, which had even partly lifted some of the smaller bones, a human skeleton lay, with a few shreds of clothing, on the ground. I believe a chill struck for a moment to every heart.

"He was a seaman," said George Merry, who, bolder than the rest, had gone up close, and was examining the scraps of clothing. "Leastways, this is a good sea-cloth."

"Ay, ay," said Silver, "like enough; you wouldn't look to find a bishop here, I reckon. But what sort of a way is that for bones to lie? Tain't in nature!"

Indeed, on second glance, it seemed impossible to fancy that the body was in a natural position. But for some disarray (the work, perhaps, of the birds that had fed upon him, or of the slow-growing creeper that had gradually enveloped his remains) the man lay perfectly straight; his feet pointing in one direction, his hands, raised above his head like a diver's, pointing directly in the opposite.

"I've taken a notion into my old numskull," observed Silver. "Here's the compass; there's the tip-top pint of Skeleton Island, stickin' out like a tooth. Just take a bearing, will you, along the line of them bones."

It was done. The body pointed straight in the direction of the island, and the compass read duly E. S. E. by E. "I thought so," cried the cook; "this here is a pinter. Right up there is our line for the pole star and the jolly dollars. But, by thunder, if it don't make me cold inside to think of Flint. This is one of his jokes, and no mistake. Him and these six were alone here; he killed 'em, every man; and this one he hauled here and laid down by compass, shiver my timbers! They're long bones, and the hair's been yellow. Ay, that would be Allardye. You mind Allardye, Tom Morgan?"

"Ay, ay," returned Morgan, "I mind him; he owed me money, he did, and took my knife ashore with him."

"Speaking of knives," said another, "why don't we find his'n lying round? Flint warn't the man to pick a seaman's pocket; and the birds, I guess, would leave it be."

"By the powers, and that's true!" cried Silver.

"There ain't a thing left here," said Merry, still feeling around among the bones, "not a copper doit nor a bacey box. It don't look nat'ral to me."

"No, by gum, it don't," agreed Silver; "not nat'ral, nor not nice, says you. Great guns! messmate, but if Flint warn't the man to pick a seaman's pocket, and the birds, I guess, would leave it be."

"I saw him dead with these here dead-lights," said Morgan. "Billy took me in. There he laid, with penny-pieces on his eyes."

"Dead—ay, sure enough he's dead, and gone below," said the fellow with the bandage; "but if ever speerit walked, it would be Flint's. Dear heart but he died bad, did Flint!"

"Ay, and that he did," observed another; "now he raged, and now he holier for the rum, and now he sung 'Fifteen Men' were his only song mates; and I tell you true, I never rightly liked to hear it since. It was mair hot, and the windy was open, and I hear that old song comin' out-as clear as clear—and the death-haul on the man already."

"Come, come," said Silver, "stow this talk. He's dead, and he don't walk, that I know; leastways, he won't walk by day, and you may lay to that. Care killed the cat. Fetch ahead for the doubloons."

We started, certainly; but in spite of the hot sun and the staring daylight the pirates no longer ran separate and shouting through the woods, but kept side by side, and spoke with hatered breath. The terror of the dead buccaneer had fallen on their spirits.

HIS FRENCH MAID.

Albert Gets Her Into a Serious Row with the Housegirl.

A youngster who is the only son of indulgent parents living in Avondale has a French maid, whose business it is to talk to him in French at all times. In fact, she has to, as her knowledge is limited when it comes to speaking English. The boy, though only seven, is as full of mischief as a young calf and he knows enough to know that he can fool the maid in more ways than one. He is something of a practical joker, too.

At lunchtime one day the maid was up at stumps in regard to asking for salt. She needed it in her soup, and to the housegirl she couldn't make her wants known. Turning to Albert, she said: "Le sel, Albair, le sel."

Turning to the housemaid Albert said in English: "Oh, the old parley voo wants some sugar. Give it to her."

She got the sugar in one of the silver boxes or dredges used for that condition and dredged her soup in the approved French way and with decided disregard for the quantity she was using. Then when she tasted the mawkish mess she broke out in a French tirade and wanted to whip the housegirl. That is, it sounded like that, with her "Sacres" and "Mon Dieus."

"Oh, but she's cussing you," said Albert to the housegirl. "I'd tell mamma. I wouldn't let any old foreigner talk that way to me."

"What's she saying?"

"Oh, 'dam' and other cuss words that are a heap worse."

Then the housegirl got back good and strong and told her she'd slap her in the mouth, and Albert had to do the interpreting. Of course he got things a little worse than they really were and poured oil on the flames. Both went to his mother, but when Albert explained his part in the row he was the one who got the scolding.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Wren's Vindication.

When Sir Christopher Wren was building the town hall of Windsor, a fugitive member of the corporation—so the story goes—insisted that the roof required further support, and desired the architect to add more pillars. In vain did Sir Christopher assure him that the danger was imaginary—he knew better. The alarm spread, and the great architect was worried into adding the desired columns. Years passed, and in later times, when architect and patron were dead, cleaning operations in the roof revealed the fact that the supposed additional supports did not touch the roof by two inches, though this was not perceptible to anyone below. By this ingenious expedient did Sir Christopher pacify his critics, while vindicating his own architectural skill to future generations.—Leisure Hours.

SUPPORT FOR TREES.

Just the Thing for Orchards in Which Hogs, Sheep and Other Animals Are Pastured.

The practice is becoming more and more prevalent of pasturing hogs and sheep in orchards. The animals thrive on the grass and fallen fruit, and they in turn enrich the orchard and destroy countless grubs and worms. With ani-imals in an orchard, however, it is impossible to prop up heavily-laden boughs, for such props will very quickly be knocked down. Fig. 1 shows a plan that can be used in almost any tree. The central branches furnish a fulcrum for the support of the poles used. One end can be placed under the branch to be supported, or tied to it, and the other end brought down under a branch on the opposite side, or tied to a branch if it is not possible to confine it under a limb. Another way is to fasten a pole to the trunk of the tree, as shown in Fig. 2. Wires extending from the top of the pole to heavily-laden branches will support these in the best possible manner.—American Agriculturist.

FIRE BLIGHT IN PEARS.

A Disease That Has Done More Damage to Growers Than All Other Affections Combined.

Bulletin 145, Cornell university experiment station, Ithaca, N. Y., gives some valuable information concerning that most pestilent disease, fire blight in pears, which has done more damage to pear growers than all the other affections combined.

Fire blight has been known in this country for a century, but was ascribed to a great many different causes until Prof. J. T. Burdill, of the University of Illinois, took the matter up and discovered that it was due to the work of bacteria, which reproduce themselves in the cambium or new wood growth that forms between the bark and wood each year. This growth is soft and full of sap, and is exactly adapted to the reproduction of the bacteria—producing the blight. Here it increases very rapidly, extending its field from cell to cell and absorbing the nutrient juices of the tree to such an extent that the branches infected finally succumb to their attacks, the foliage showing this condition by turning brown as if burned by intense heat.

The only remedy is the heroic one of excision, and the knife and saw should be used at any time when the disease manifests itself. Cut the affected branches off and burn them, and be sure to cut them off enough below the visible effects to cut out any part that may be infected in the slightest degree.

It has been found that no pear tree is safe from the attacks of this bacteria, although some are sold as blight proof. If the affected branches are cut away as soon as the disease shows and a careful watch is kept all through the summer to keep the disease from spreading, it will often be stamped out in a single season.

Kidding the Soil of Anas.

In sandy soils especially, ants are oftentimes troublesome and more or less of an annoyance on trees, shrubbery and plants. They may be destroyed by pouring a tablespoonful of bisulphide of carbon into the ant hill and closing the opening with soil. The liquid will permeate the soil in every direction and kill all animal life, while being harmless to vegetation. As it is exceedingly inflammable, it must be kept carefully away from fire. A remedy quite as effective and less dangerous to handle is sweet oil. Place this where the ants can get it and they will come in quantities. The oil renders them unconscious, and those not killed by it may be quickly gathered and destroyed.—Prairie Farmer.

DRAFT OF VEHICLES.

Methods of Harnessing a Horse So as to Get the Best Result Described by Prof. Edgerton.

Prof. J. J. Edgerton, of the Iowa agricultural college, has been making a special study of the methods for harnessing a horse so as to get the best results. It is an old and popular idea, he says, that a loaded wagon will draw easier when the greater part of the load is placed over the front wheels. As a rule, the horse will do his work more easily if he is placed near it; there being less lost motion. The driver also will be able to keep his operations more completely under his control. In the case just cited the opposite of the general supposition is true. This is due to a difference in the size of the fore and hind wheels. The surface over which a load is drawn being more or less thickly set with obstacles over which the wheels must pass, it stands to reason that a wheel with a diameter of five feet will be much more easily raised over a given obstacle than will one of four feet; the leverage being so much greater in the first case. If we suppose the load brought to a curbstone six inches in height, over which it must be raised, the load on the five-foot wheels will be brought over one-third easier than an equal load on the four-foot wheels, because the leverage in the first case is one-third greater. It must not be supposed, however, that the present tendency toward low-wheeled wagons is a move altogether in the wrong direction, for the greater width of tire preventing the wheel from sinking so deeply into soft ground, lessening the height to which the load must be lifted, helps to counterbalance the evil tendency.—Journal of Agriculture.

DOCTOR'S EXPERIENCE.

Illinois Physician Has an Adventure That Should Teach Country People a Lesson.

The condition of country roads affects the rural doctor perhaps quite as much as anybody, especially as his duties compel him to use them pretty constantly, no matter what shape they may happen to be in. A Bloomington paper says that a physician in a small Illinois town has lately had life made a burden to him by the roads over, or rather through, which he had to travel. "In some places the mud is actually a foot and a half deep. It is at times almost impossible for a horse to get through it. Yet he has calls to make a distance of ten miles or more over that kind of roads. Recently he was on a good horse galloping through the mud, in spite of the fact that, at every jump the horse went over his ankles—when the horse slipped and fell. The doctor was thrown bodily over a ditch of water, while the horse went unhurt, but they were both so covered with mud that it was impossible to tell what color they were. The doctor had on a waterproof and did not get wet. He caught the horse, mounted and went on. It was not an unusual occurrence."

ALL AROUND THE DAIRY.

Hoard says that if the cow has a hard, dry hacking cough, suspect tuberculosis.

There is not much difference in the merit of churns except that some work easier and more rapidly.

Oats and peas sown together at the rate of about three bushels to the acre, make nearly green crop for cows.

If the calf is permitted to suck the cow more than three or four days the cow will be injured for dairy purposes.

Educate the people to know that oleomargarine is a dirty, disease-breeding compound, and then let the courts protect it as much as they like.

It is said that placing fresh water before cows in the stable, so that they can drink a little whenever wanted, increases the yield of milk sufficiently to repay cost of pipes and appliances in a very short time.

One dairyman raises his calves on separator skim milk, with a little white middlings stirred in, after they are two weeks old, and until they are four weeks, when he adds wheat middlings and old process meal.—Western Plowman.

Good Roads and Vacations.

Communities that look for income from the summer boarder cannot afford to ignore any feature of their surroundings that will add to their attractiveness. Times change and we all change with them. Nearly every family going away for the summer takes several wheels along, and the thousands who get away for a two weeks' vacation look for localities in which they can use their machines to best advantage. With all the character of the roads is of first importance. This fact makes it possible for less alluring spots to rival their more popular competitors, by providing superior roads and advertising their excellence, and each succeeding year will make this plan increasingly effective.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

The Horseradish Crop.

In growing horseradish the land should be rich, well manured, plowed deep, harrowed and free from lumps. As it is a great vegetable to spread, plant each root in a roomy space by itself. Make rows 15 inches apart and set plants 12 inches from each other. Plant shoots about five inches long, making holes for them with a stick, and set them about two inches under the soil. Have the shoots cut squarely across the bottom, but cut slanting at the top in order that one side may be a little longer than the other. Keep free from weeds for the first and second seasons, after which the horseradish will take care of itself.—Dakota Field and Farm.

WELL-PAID AUTHORS.

Mr. Gladstone's price for a review was $1,000.

Conan Doyle received $35,000 for "Rodney Stone."

Ruskin's 64 books bring him in $20,000 a year.

Swinburne, who writes very little, makes $5,000 a year by his poems.

Browning, in his later years, drew $10,000 a year from the sale of his works.

Ian Maclaren made $35,000 out of "The Bonnie Brier Bush" and "Auld Lang Syne."

Anthony Hope charges $450 for a magazine story, reserving the copyright.

Zola's first 14 books returned him $220,000, and in 20 years he made at least $375,000.

Tennyson is said to have received $60,000 a year from the Macmillans during the last years of his life.

Rider Haggard asks from $75 to 100 a column of 1,500 words, and will not write an article for which less than $10,000 is to be paid.

Two hundred thousand dollars was paid to Alphonse Daudet for his "Sapho"—the highest price ever paid for a novel.

Mr. Moody is believed to have beaten all others, as more than $1,250,000 has been paid in royalties for the "Gospel Hymns and Tunes" by him in conjunction with Mr. Sankey.

The Pall Mall Gazette paid Rudyard Kipling $750 for each of his "Barrack Room Ballads," and "The Seven Seas" brought him $11,000. He has received 56 cents a word for a 10,000-word story.

Mrs. Humphrey Ward received $40,000 for "Robert Elsmere," $80,000 each for "David Grieve" and "Marcella," $75,000 for "Sir George Tressady" and $15,000 for "Jessie Costello."

OF A SCIENTIFIC NATURE.

Scarlet flowers are said to stand drought better than any others.

It may not be generally known that Darwin long ago proved that plants and flowers have brains, and that if they do not exactly argue matters out among themselves, the instinct of self-preservation is strong upon them.

Sunstroke generally occurs to persons laboring in the open air and sunshine; but it would be better named heat-stroke, for it can occur even in winter in a close, darkened room where the temperature is for a long time above the normal.

A thought-weighting machine has been invented by Prof. Mosso, the Italian physiologist, the rush of blood to the head turning the scale. The machine is said to be so delicate that it can measure the difference in the exertion needed to read Greek from that required for Latin.

One of the most remarkable links known to the chemist is made from a preparation of Prussian blue in combination with nitric and hydrochloric acid. The writing done with this ink has the singular property of fading when exposed to the light, and recovering its color when taken into the shade or placed in perfect darkness.

An Italian artist in London is said to have just perfected a new range-finder which, it is claimed, will be of immense service both in peace and war. It is said to be a great improvement on all range-finders now in use. The distance of any object can be ascertained by a mere glance through the instrument, it being shown on a little dial the moment the object is focused.

DIDN'T KNOW LIGHT GREEN.

A Bumptious Dominie Who Was a Trifle Off in Distinguishing Colors.

Out of every 50 young men who want to volunteer at the different recruiting stations in the downtown district it is estimated that at least 15 stipulate that commissions shall be the price of their sacrifice. Some of these would-be officers are eventually convinced that as much glory can be gained in the file as in the rank of the army, but the majority go away insisting that they were constituted for command and could not brook the orders of inferior beings.

Col. Koch was visited by a former school principal, who appeared to have the make-up of a desirable recruit. He was tall and broad, and walked with a firm military step. The stranger proved to be a native of the United States and well posted on the constitution of the nation. In accordance with his custom, Col. Koch explained some of the manifold duties of the soldier. The applicant, who might be called on any time to tear up a fence, build a fire, clean a horse or carry water. These menial chores did not accord with the professor's preconception of the man of war.

"I am accustomed to command," said the principal. "Why not make me a captain?"

Capt. Koch did not stop to reason with the caller. He signaled to Capt. Jones, who understood the situation, and who presented himself as the medical examiner.

"What's the color of that eard in the end of the room?" the captain demanded.

"That's pale blue," replied the stranger.

"No, it isn't. It's a light green. I'm afraid you're color blind. In spite of your many qualifications to command, we could not depend upon you to distinguish a Spanish mortar battery from a sennepedalian. We're sorry, but can't use you under any circumstances."—Chicago Chronicle.

A Case of Memory.

The serenader stopped beneath the window. He unslung his guitar and touched its strings softly and lovingly. Then he looked about the dark shadows of the garden and along the line of fence that marked the street end of the handsome premises.

Nothing was in sight.

Looking again at the window, the youth ran his fingers swiftly across the strings, and then, lifting up his head and opening his mouth until the moonlight glittered on his teeth, he began in a shrill tenor:

"Oh, don't you remember—"

But he got no further.

The window above suddenly opened and a large, heavily-framed engraving of the battleship Maine was dropped from within and fell squarely on the singer's head.

"Oh, I remember all right," shouted a hoarse voice from above.

And the startled singer gathered himself together and sadly and painfully went his way.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A GUARDSMAN'S TROUBLE.

From the Detroit (Mich.) Journal.

The promptness with which the National Guard of the different states responded to President McKinley's call for troops at the beginning of the war with Spain made the whole country proud of its citizen soldiers. In Detroit there are few guardsmen more popular and efficient.

than Max R. Davies, first sergeant of Co. B. He has been a resident of Detroit for the past six years, and his home is at 416 Third Avenue.

For four years he was connected with the well known wholesale drug house of Farland, Williams & Clark in the capacity of bookkeeper.

"I have charged up many thousand orders for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," said Mr. Davies, "but never knew their The First Sergeant."

until I used them for the cure of chronic dyspepsia. For two years I suffered and doctored for that aggravating trouble but could only be helped temporarily.

"I think dyspepsia is one of the most stubborn of ailments, and there is scarcely a clerk or office man but what is more or less a victim. Some days I could eat anything, while at other times I would be starving. Those distressed pains would force me to quit work."

"I tried the hot-water treatment thoroughly, but it did not affect my case. I have tried many advertised remedies, but they would help only for a time. A friend of mine recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, but I did not think much of them."

"I finally was induced to try the pills and commenced using them. After taking a few doses I found much relief. I do not remember how many boxes of the pills I used, but I used them until the old trouble stopped. I know they will cure dyspepsia of the worst form, and I am pleased to recommend them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

There were fought 2,361 engagements during the war of the rebellion.

SINGULAR STATEMENT.

From Mrs. Rank to Mrs. Pinkham.

The following letter to Mrs. Pinkham from Mrs. M. RANK, No. 2,354 East Susquehanna Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., is a remarkable statement of relief from utter discouragement. She says:

"I never can find words with which to thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."

"Some years ago I had womb trouble and doctored for a long time, not seeing any improvement. At times I would feel well enough, and other times was miserable. So it went on until last October, I felt something terrible creeping over me. I knew not what, but kept getting worse. I can hardly explain my feelings at that time. I was so depressed in spirits that I did not wish to live, although I had everything to live for. Had hysteria, was very nervous; could not sleep and was not safe to be left alone."

"Indeed, I thought I would lose my mind. No one knows what I endured."

"I continued this way until the last of February, when I saw in a paper a testimonial of a lady whose case was similar to mine, and who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I determined to try it, and felt better after the first dose. I continued taking it, and to-day am a well woman, and can say from my heart, 'Thank God for such a medicine.'"

Mrs. Pinkham invites all suffering women to write to her at Lynn, Mass., for advice. All such letters are seen and answered by women only.

Proposed Alliance with England.

If the United States and England should form an alliance, the combined strength would be so great that there would be little chance for enemies to overcome us. In a like manner, when men and women keep their bodily strength with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, there is little chance of attacks from disease. The old time remedy enriches the blood, builds up the muscles, steadies the nerves and increases the appetite. Try it.

Hair Hints

Is your hair dry, harsh, and brittle? Is it fading or turning gray? Is it falling out? Does dandruff trouble you? For any or all of these conditions there is an infallible remedy in Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor.

"For years, I was troubled with dandruff, large flakes scaling and falling off, causing great annoyance. Sometimes the itching of the scalp was almost unendurable. Prescriptions from eminent physicians, put up in my own drugstore were tried, but failed to afford relief. At length I used Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor, and in one week I found it helped me. At the end of only two weeks, my head was entirely free from dandruff, and as clean as a child's. I heartily recommend Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor to all who are suffering from diseases of the scalp."—EDWIN NORDSTROM, Drugs, etc., Sacred Heart, Minn.

Warren and Elizabeth Fisher are visiting their aunt, Mrs. William Prewitt, in Montgomery county.

Prof. W. G. Thompson and wife will spend July drumming in central Kentucky for the K. C. & B. College.

S. H. Gaitskill and wife, of McIntosh, Fla., who have been at the bedside of the former's mother, Mrs. Francis V. Gaitskill, at Wade's Mill, left Monday on a business trip to New York, Baltimore and Philadelphia. They will return and make an extended visit in Kentucky in a few weeks.

The News scribe spent Monday in Montgomery county. While out on the N. N. & M. V. R. R., in the Prewitt section, we noted a few points, as follows: Corn was blown down by Monday's rain; tobacco fields were washed considerably, newly-cut fields of wheat had a blown-down capless appearance.

MRS. LAURA WEISHAUF.

Of Murry, Ind., Recommends Wright's Celery Capsules.

Murry, Ind., Sept. 17, 1896.
THE WRIGHT MEDICAL CO.,
Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Last spring I purchased a box of Wright's Celery Capsules from L. C. Davenport, druggist, Bluffton, Ind., and used them for stomach trouble with which I had been afflicted for more than 15 years. Since taking your Capsules I have lost all trace of pain and my stomach is entirely well. I can eat anything and can truthfully say that I have not felt better in years.

Yours Respectfully,

MRS. LAURA WEISHAUF.

Sold by W. T. Brooks at 50c. and $1.00 per box. Send address on postal to the Wright Med. Co., Columbus, Ohio, for trial size, free.

Chronic Dyspepsia Cured.

AFTER suffering for nearly thirty years from dyspepsia, Mrs. H. E. Dugdale, wife of a prominent business man of Warsaw, N. Y., writes: "For 23 years, I was a constant sufferer from dyspepsia and a weak stomach. The lightest food produced distress, causing severe pain and the formation of gas. No matter how careful of my diet I suffered agonizing pain after eating. I was treated by many physicians and tried numerous remedies without permanent help. Two years ago I began taking Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and Nervine. Within a week I commenced improving, and persisting in the treatment I was soon able to eat what I liked, with no evil effects. I keep them at hand and a single dose dispels any old symptoms."

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address, DR. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

A Beautiful Present

FREE for a few months to all users of the celebrated ELASTIC STARCH, (Flat Iron Brand). To induce you to try this brand of starch, so that you may find out for yourself that all claims for its superiority and economy are true, the makers have had prepared, at great expense, a series of exact reproductions of the $10,000 originals by Muville, which will be given you ABSOLUTELY FREE by your grocer on conditions named below. These Plaques are 40 inches in circumference, are free of any suggestion of advertising whatever, and will ornament the most elegant apartment. No manufacturing concern ever before gave away such valuable presents to its customers. They are not for sale at any price, and can be obtained only in the manner specified. The subjects are:

American Wild Ducks, American Pheasant,
English Quail, English Snipe.

The birds are handsomely embossed and stand out natural as life. Each Plaque is bordered with a band of gold.

ELASTIC STARCH

has been the standard for 25 years.

TWENTY-TWO MILLION packages of this brand were sold last year. That's how good it is.

ASK YOUR DEALER

to show you the plaques and tell you about Elastic Starch. Accept no substitute.

How To Get Them:

All purchasers of three 10 cent or six 5 cent packages of Elastic Starch (Flat Iron Brand), are entitled to receive from their grocer one of these beautiful Game Plaques free. The plaques will not be sent by mail. They can be obtained only from your grocer.

Every Grocer Keeps Elastic Starch. Do not delay. This offer is for a short time only.
